Shame on Fort Collins

What a shock to read on the morning of the fourth day of Hanukkah that the city of Fort Collins deemed it too late to display a menorah. Even more shocking is the fact that it took an Australian rabbi to make the request ("No permanent public spot for menorah in Fort Collins - for now," Dec. 28).

Shame on the citizens of Fort Collins for not appealing the city's policy sooner. I've been a resident of Highlands Ranch for nearly 10 years and have always enjoyed the menorah display. As a member of a smaller Jewish population here, I applaud Highlands Ranch for observing our holiday along with its Christmas lights and decorations.
